No change for AHM mill rates

by Jerry Grozelle

The budget for Anson, Hindon and Minden residents is good news. The overall mill rate increase, including board of education and county levies, will average just 0.3 per cent. Some areas will actually experience a slight decrease.

The overall figures are as follows: The county mill rate decreased by 1.7 per cent; the Haliburton County Board of Education mill rate increased by 1.1 per cent; and the general municipal mill rate was not changed (zero per cent). The municipal street light mill rate decreased by various amounts depending on location within the municipality.

Councillor Jerry Rome pointed out that the replacement of Minden's street lights with more energy efficient ones in 1993 is showing a saving earlier than expected.

"We're reaping some benefits already," he said. "It has really worked out well."

A statement released by Anson, Hindon and Minden reeve Jeanne Anthon states: "It is apparent from the overall mill rate increase that all levels of government, under our jurisdiction, have been sensitive to the taxpayers' need for lower taxation."

It goes on to outline where some of the savings were realized and the services that the municipality will provide within the guidelines of that budget.

The roads department estimates include the application of five kilometres of hard surface treatment on the Airport Road and the Caribou Lodge Road. Also included is the replacement of the 1980 dump truck with a new model. That purchase was partially funded with a grant from the Ministry of Transportation. The maintenance costs associated with the old truck are expected to be substantially reduced with the new truck in operation.

The parks department will be purchasing two new lawn mowers, replacing six year-old equipment. The parks staff will now be maintaining the Panorama Park grounds since the park has been acquired from the Ministry of Natural Resources by the municipality.

A reserve fund has been set aside for a rescue type storage van for the fire department. The remainder of the funding will be raised by the fire fighters.

Also in the budget is provision for a new computer system

Cubs and Beavers from Minden marched with veterans and Legion members and joined the general public May 7 to pay tribute to the Canadians who fought and died during the Second World War. The memorial service at the cenotaph was held in conjunction with the fiftieth anniversary of the end of the European conflict.

Phillips sentenced

"Virtually no possibility of rehabilitation": Judge MacIsaac

Lenard Phillips was sentenced by judge John MacIsaac to imprisonment for life with parole eligibility after 18 years. Phillips was convicted of second degree murder in the stabbing death of Minden OPP constable Eric Nystedt on July 3, 1993.

When he handed down his decision, MacIsaac said that he considered a number of factors in regard to Phillips' eligibility for parole, including the character of the defendant, the nature of the offense and the recommendations of the jury. Eight of the jurors recommended the maximum of 25 years before eligibility for parole, while the other four recommended 20 years.

MacIsaac said that Phillips showed no remorse for what he did and that there was virtually no possibility of rehabilitation.

"He (Phillips) holds the laws of Canadian society in contempt," MacIsaac said. "Violence is an acceptable part of life to him."

The Crown has appealed the conviction. It will be seeking a first degree murder conviction. The defense is expected to appeal as well, looking for a lesser conviction of manslaughter. The defense has 30 days from the date of sentencing (May 11) in which to file its appeal.

Board gets 'road map' to restructuring

Ted Wilkes, chair of the Restructuring Committee of the Acting Health Services Board, had some positive news to share at last week's board meeting.

"We finally have a road map," he told the board in regard to the steps that have to be taken to complete the capital projects (actually get some construction started).

Wilkes said he "had their undivided attention for a good hour and a half" at the monthly meeting with the District Health Council and the Ministry of Health in Peterborough. He was able to nail down the nine-step plan that the Ministry follows when any health care facilities are being built or upgraded. He admits that the nine steps are geared to the large city hospitals and he is optimistic that, given the size of the local projects (Haliburton and Minden Hospitals), that the number of steps can be reduced to six or seven.

The first step is to define what services will be available at both locations. That was addressed with the resolution of December 1994 that was approved by the ministry. The resolution stated that there must be "meaningful" services at both Haliburton and Minden.

Wilkes said the outcome of the meeting in Peterborough was very positive.

"We got some decisions made, which is good news," Wilkes said.

He said that an agreement was reached that a "need base study" won't have to be done. It would have been a four or five

Stanhope firefighters clean up the debris left behind when a motorcycle crashed on Highway 35 by Halls Lake. The unidentified driver apparently lost control of the motorcycle and crashed into the guard rails. He was not seriously injured. This is the second motorcycle accident to occur within the last month and coincidentally happened in front of the residence of Jeremy Durkin, who was seriously hurt in a mishap on Highway 121 April 20. Four charged: MTO bureau break-in Minden OPP have arrested four people in connection with the break-in at Leitha's Sweets and Treats/ MTO Licence Bureau.

Jason Wolfraim, 22, of Toronto (a former Minden resident), Todd Digiacomo, 24, of the same Toronto address, Francine Digiacomo, 26, of Toronto (sister of Todd) and a female young offender from Minden were charged with conspiracy to possess stolen property.

The four were taken into custody on May 1. The three adults were held in custody at the Lindsay Jail pending a bail hearing. The young offender was released on a promise to appear in court.

Along with some photo cards and Polaroid photographs from the MTO break-in, police also recovered a stolen 1995 Jeep Cherokee with home-made licence plates. The Cherokee was stolen in Toronto in January.

The investigation is still under way.

Fatal accident

Seventy-one year-old Randolph Scott of Tory Hill died when his car struck a rock cut on Highway 121 east of Tory Hill Friday. OPP investigating officer Mark Davis reports that the accident is still under investigation, but as near as he can tell, the Scott vehicle, a 1988 Chevrolet, was westbound on Highway 121 when it veered to the south ditch and struck the rock cut.

Scott was alone in the vehicle.

The Monmouth Fire Department assisted with the extrication of the victim from the vehicle. Monmouth doesn't have a set of heavy hydraulics (jaws of life). The county has a set, which is kept in Haliburton and is available to any county fire department which needs it. The only other municipalities in the county with such equipment are Anson, Hindon and Minden, Stanhope and Cardiff.

Nabbed

An escapee from prison is back in custody and a Haliburton break-in was interrupted thanks to an observant motorist.

A break-in was in progress at about 2:15 a.m. on April 30 when a passing motorist noticed a broken window in the front door of Westside Jug City in Haliburton. The individual called police from a nearby telephone booth.

Minden OPP officers Mark McMaster, Ben Manuge and Rick Gooch responded to the call. When they arrived on the scene, they observed a suspect running from the site. An ensuing foot-pursuit resulted in the capture of Csaba Kovacs, 24, of no fixed address. His last known address was the Frontenac Correctional Institute in Kingston, from which he had escaped. According to police, he was serving a two-year sentence for breaking and entering when he escaped.

Kovacs has been charged with breaking, entering and theft as well as escaping lawful custody. He is being held at the Lindsay Jail pending a court appearance on the charges laid by Minden OPP.

No more playing Post Office

Local youths are being warned they can no longer use the Minden post office parking lot after hours for an impromptu road hockey surface.

The restriction was set in place after damage was reported during the past weekend. According to Constable Rick Gooch, several group mail boxes stored outside, were damaged as a result of the hockey action. As well, two air conditioning units were vandalized and a window facing the parking area was broken.

Constable Gooch said damage was estimated at $1000. As a result, any unauthorized use of the post office parking lot will result in charges of trespass being laid.

Vainio will carry NDP banner

by Andrew Milne

Cathy Vainio is running as the New Democratic Party (NDP) candidate for Victoria-Haliburton in the upcoming provincial election. She was elected to the candidacy May 8 at the Lindsay Legion.

Vainio said the first two issues her party's platform will have to address reflect what the polling says are the top two concerns in voters' minds — the employment picture and deficit reduction. She also said that though these will of necessity be the same issues the other parties will have to address, the NDP intends to address them with a difference.

Cathy Vainio, selected by the NDP last Monday.

Said Vainio in her nomination speech, "Let us reflect a moment on the oppositions' agenda. Their responses to the challenges ahead can be put in one word: cuts. This is the dislocation mode. We all know what that means — an economic downturn, and a downgrading and a degrading of the public sector. Will this translate into deficit reduction? No. More unemployed, less revenue, and a steep rise in the social deficit. Our approach is to share the pain and the gain. No cuts, but in the larger fiscal realities, freezing government expenditures and working smarter. We can take this challenge as an opportunity to deliver services more efficiently and more effectively, and at the same time, enjoy the benefits of our growing economy, including deficit reduction."

Vainio also said she does not consider the promises made by the opposition parties with respect to deficit reduction to be realistic or responsible. "You've read the papers this morning (May 9)," she said. "We could be in for another mini recession. It's like a family budget — something may crop up where you cannot meet that really rigid criteria. We have (Progressive Conservative leader) Mike Harris saying he's going to throw in the towel if he doesn't meet the target. We all know there's no way he's going to meet the target unless he does a drastic slash and burn. So someone's going to get hurt... (Federal finance minister) Paul Martin has said we're going to reduce the budget over time. He hasn't set any specific time span on this process. Because there are so many factors not internal to this, it would be a little irresponsible for a leader to say we're going to hit this target. Because a lot of the impacts are

McCrae wants safe communities

by Jack Brezina

One of the main planks of the Liberal platform heading into the June 8 election is what Victoria-Haliburton candidate Sharon McCrae describes as safe communities.

According to the Liberal hopeful, the term identifies a number of issues that are of concern throughout the riding and the province. "Many of us think of crime as being an urban problem," she commented last week, "however, it is an issue that touches us all even here in mainly rural Victoria-Haliburton." She noted there has been an increased migration out of the cities to the smaller communities and in some cases this has brought the problems of the big cities to the smaller centres.

She pointed out the Liberal platform calls for stiffer sentences for those convicted of crimes, especially where firearms are involved. "Potential criminals have to get the message that 'they will do the time if they commit the crime'," McCrae commented.

She noted that students have to feel secure within their schools. "We need to bring youth on side, show them that they have a responsibility as citizens to report criminal activity and to be secure in the knowledge that they will not suffer reprisals if they do," the candidate said. "The students have to learn that indeed, crime does not pay."

Continuing on the same theme, she suggested that efforts should be made to place greater responsibility on the parents' shoulders for the actions of their children. She also called for speedier handling of court cases so that police are not tied up "for endless

All-candidates meeting Tuesday

An all candidates meeting for provincial election hopefuls will be held tomorrow, Tuesday May 16. The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at Hyland Crest in Minden.

The meeting, sponsored by the Haliburton District Real Estate Board, is free of charge for the general public.

According to the sponsor, due to the busy schedule of the candidates, this will be the only all candidates meeting in Haliburton County during this election.

Hodgson priority is debt, economy

by Jerry Grozelle

Chris Hodgson says there has to be a dramatic change in the way the provincial government operates.

"The government has to work for the people," he said. "Almost all of the businesses in Haliburton and Victoria counties are finding it really tough, with the number of regulations, paper work and the taxation levels, to even survive, let alone hire more people."

The Progressive Conservative Party would give small business people more control over their own destiny.

Hodgson says that the government has to bring two major problems under control -- the ever-increasing debt load must be curbed and the economy must be stimulated.

With regard to the debt, he says a plan was introduced a year ago that was presented in town hall sessions across Ontario. That plan, which has been well received by the public, calls for a fully balanced budget.

"We have to deal with the debt now," he said. "We have to get our fiscal house in order.

"The other thing we have to do is get our economy going," he said. "Sixty per cent of our economy is consumer-driven. People need to have some money in their pockets in order to spend it. The taxation level is extremely high, so we're going to bring the income tax level back to where it was in 1990."

Reducing the tax burden at both the small business and the individual level would serve to stimulate the economy.

The theory is that less income taxes would give people more disposable income. The more people spend, the more sales taxes are collected. The difference is that the consumer would have more to show for the money that he or she earned.

Such things as taking the health tax off small businesses that generate less than $400,000 per year would ease the financial burden the small business person has to deal with.

Welfare reform and a reduction in the size of the government are two areas where Hodgson sees some potential savings to offset the loss in government revenue that would be associated with the reduction in taxes.

Reduction in the level of the government bureaucracy would be accomplished, in a large part, through attrition. Retiring employees and those who move to jobs in the private sector would not be replaced.

In the area of education, Hodgson said his party would put more emphasis on the classroom. He said that too much of the province's education budget is spent on consultants and in other areas that don't directly benefit the students.

Hodgson's concerns include health care

Health care is another issue that is important to Hodgson. He said a provincial PC government would "seal the envelope" on health care. That is to say that current levels of funding would be maintained, while ways to better deliver services would be explored. Hodgson said that keeping funding levels constant, it would encourage efficiency in the provision of health care services. As better, more efficient methods of delivering services are found, the savings would be channelled back into the health care system.

Hodgson said that he thinks it is important for people to know the costs of providing health care. To that end, he said that if everyone who visits a doctor or hospital would sign a receipt, they would soon realize the costs involved. He emphasized that he is against any form of user-pay system for health care. The idea of signing a receipt for medical services would be a way of educating people about the cost.

An issue that is important to many people in the Victoria-Haliburton riding is the federal proposals for more restrictive gun controls.

Hodgson said that although the issue is being dealt with at the federal level, it will be the provinces which will be required to administer such areas as registration.

"Our party is the only one that is opposed to the registration of all firearms," Hodgson said. "It would be a huge cost, for no benefit. We'd rather see those dollars used to tackle crime and control criminals."

"We believe that Bill-163 (the Planning Act) should be split into three parts," he said. "As it stands, the Bill has the disclosure statement, rules of how council meetings are to be conducted and land use planning all wrapped into one bill and they really shouldn't apply to rural Ontario. They are trying to solve problems in Metro and they are missing the point that our (rural) councillors are basically volunteer."

He said that local communities should have more say about how they look. The provincial guidelines don't allow for much flexibility at the municipal level.

"They've said this is how we want Ontario to look and every community in Ontario will have to end up looking similar to that," Hodgson said.

He emphasized that people move to the Haliburton Highlands or the Kawarthas because they like the rural quality of life. If the province says that every community has to have condensed development and be modelled like little cities, there would be little incentive to leave the cities.

"In fact, you'd be restricting people's ability to choose where they want to live," he said. "So, you'd be changing it from a market-driven system to a central planning system."

He agreed that it appears as though the government would prefer to have everyone living in the cities and have the rest of the country for a park.

"I've been the Natural Resources Critic for the past year and I've enjoyed that," Hodgson said. "I've travelled Ontario learning about the portfolio and there are some things I think need to be addressed."

He said that the concept of multiple use of the province's natural resources is being pushed aside.

"It is getting to the point where conservation means non-use," he protested. "That's wrong, in my opinion. They are failing to recognize that our economy is tied, to a large degree, with tourism."

He said that to arbitrarily restrict fishing without any recognition of the economic impact is short-sighted.

Hodgson said there has to be more co-ordination and co-operation between ministries. He cited Natural Resources, Culture, Tourism and Recreation and Environment as three ministries that should be working hand-in-hand instead of against each other, as is often the case.

Hodgson said that he has enjoyed the past year since he was elected in the riding's by-election.

" There are no gimmicks, I just promise to do my best," he concluded.

Share the pain and the gain: Vainio says

pacts are not local — not internal — they're coming from outside."

Vainio said she feels part of improving health care in rural areas has to be changing the attitudes of the practising doctors. "We have to look at ways," she says, "to attract kids from the rural areas — and (Liberal leader) Lyn McLeod said this and I agree 100 percent with her — don't go from Fenelon Falls High School to U of T Med School and find yourself a fat practice in downtown Toronto. Come back home and serve the people where you grew up. But this is an individual matter. The government can come up with ways to attract people. That's something that the OMA and the communities have to figure out, and with government support get these people back into the rural areas."

Vainio has also run for the NDP in the past two federal elections. A part-time school teacher with the Peterborough board, this is her first time running provincially.

The election is June 8.

"Making preplanning arrangements is a simple process."

"If you've ever thought about making advance funeral plans, you probably have a lot of questions. There may be some uncertainty about what these arrangements include.

Preplanning is simply making a written record of your requests. Or you have the option to prepay for services or merchandise.

The reasons people choose to preplan may vary, but most want to assure their loved ones aren't burdened financially or emotionally. It's a comfort to know things are taken care of."

MEMBER ORDER OF THE GOLDEN RULE

Board gets outline of capital planning process

week information gathering study to bring the data that's already available together.

"They've (ministry officials) decided that's not necessary and we can go into what's called the capital planning process," Wilkes said. "This is the same process that every hospital in Ontario has to go through. It involves, essentially, nine steps; the last step being construction."

Wilkes explained that step eight is the tendering process and the step before that is the preparation of the working drawings by the architect.

Step one, as Wilkes explains it, is to define the details of each health centre.

"The starting point is the December 14 resolution, which defined the facilities that we would like to have in Minden and in Haliburton," Wilkes said. "What we have to do now is decide what services will be offered at each location and where they will be located in the buildings with regard to each other."

He adds: "Keep in mind that this capital planning process was designed for big hospitals so some of it won't make a lot of sense for our small hospitals. You can visualize, when you're designing a hospital in Toronto, where you have trauma units and cardiology and neurology, you have to decide where they will be with relation to each other. So, some of these things are overkill. What we have to do is meet with the ministry and see what shortcuts we can take in this whole process, based on the fact that ours is a small project in the scheme of things. The important thing is that we are at step one. It means that we have started. That may not seem like much on the surface, but at least we have a road map. At least we have some direction from the ministry telling us what the steps are that we have to follow to end up building what we want."

Wilkes said he expects that by March 31, 1996, which is the end of the fiscal year, the conceptual drawings should be completed. He emphasized that these wouldn't be working blueprints, but draft drawings that can be studied and manipulated into the basis for the final blueprints.

"Our goal in the next few weeks is to contract with a large company that can handle all phases, one that can handle at least from step one to the point where we can hire a contractor," He said. "Whether that's possible or not remains to be seen. Whether or not that kind of company exists or not is hard to say yet."

A budget will be submitted to the ministry within the next few weeks.

"Before we can submit that budget we have to get the ministry to agree which steps can be eliminated or combined," Wilkes said. "We're hoping they will give us some shortcuts."

Wilkes said that he isn't particularly worried about the outcome of the provincial election next month.

"The bureaucracy will remain the same," he said. "We'll be dealing with the same people. We have to be realistic and realize that the bosses (elected officials) may change, but to what extent it will change the mode of operation, we don't know."

He said that the fact that the local project is small in the scheme of things may work to advantage.

"I'm optimistic that the program will go ahead," he said. "The fact that they have allowed us to hire an executive director is an indication to me that they aren't fooling around."

Looking for medical services?

Here is what is available in Minden

As a result of the many changes taking place in medical services in the Minden area, confusion has arisen as to where to access various health care services in this community. The following is a list of the services available to the public:

•MINDEN HOSPITAL: The emergency department is open 24 hours a day from Fridays at 8 a.m. through to Sunday at midnight. Monday through Thursday, the Emergency Department is open from 8 a.m. to midnight. Individuals who have difficulty obtaining an appointment at a doctor's office in the community can visit the emergency department for attention. This walk-in clinic is available during the same hours as the emergency department, however emergency cases will take precedence over those visiting the walk-in clinic.

•MINDEN MEDICAL CENTRE: Doctors Chayer and Warsi will continue to see patients by appointment at the clinic located next to the Minden Hospital. The phone number is 286-2001.

Burgers & toll booth

Holiday weekend shoppers in Minden will have an opportunity to enjoy a hamburger and help raise funds for the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto.

Pat Campbell, operator of Campbell's Garden Centre and Flower Shop on South water Street, will be joined by a number of volunteers Saturday and Sunday as they barbecue the treats in front of her store. They will be offering hamburgers, hot dogs and sausage on a bun.

And while you are driving around this Saturday, watch out for the Lions Club annual toll booth on Minden's Sunnyside (Main Street) bridge. Contributions, of course, are voluntary. Proceeds will help support the various community projects of the service club.

to replace the antiquated equipment that is currently in use by municipal staff. This purchase will be partially funded by a reserve that has been building since 1992.

The arena/community centre will experience some minor renovations. Council encourages those requiring a banquet hall to take advantage of the community centre facility.

"Council will continue to support as many community events as possible, through the promotions budget, to help our businesses," the statement continues. "Last year's infrastructure projects are ongoing in some instances, continuing to boost our fragile economy with employment opportunities. Further infrastructure projects have been applied for, and if approved, will be funded without an increase to our mill rate, through the use of established reserves."

Council also has plans to start a reserve for the 1997 municipal election to "avoid a sudden increase that year to finance the cost of administering an election."

Council has purchased the land adjacent to the municipal office and staff parking area. The property will be developed as a new and improved playground. Plans also include the construction of a basketball court.

When discussing the budget, council members gave credit to the councils of the past several years as well as municipal staff for their insight and frugal management of municipal funds. Their efforts have allowed the current council to bring in a realistic budget while maintaining a zero per cent increase in the municipal mill rate.

'Let's deal with provincial issues': McCrae suggests hours" waiting in court. "Police officers are much too valuable to the community to have them sitting around in court," she said.

The Liberal candidate also called for improved fire safety across the province especially in regard to high-rise buildings. "I know this riding is not 'high-rise' territory," McCrae said, "but the same principles of safety and preparedness apply to the apartment units that are now home for so many of our seniors." She suggested that communities should have in place a disaster plan that could be activated in case of a major calamity.

Gun control

As a politician who is canvassing from door to door, McCrae is often asked about her stand on gun control and the legislation being proposed by the federal government. While she doesn't mind making her views known on the issue, she is quick to point out that the proposed law is a federal matter and is not something that can be decided at the provincial Legislature.

"I have been asked about it almost on a daily basis," McCrae explains. "It is an emotional issue and one on which most people hold very strong views."

"I do not agree with the stand that Allan Rock (Federal Justice Minister) has taken on this issue. I do not feel there is a need for registration and I feel the funds that will be expended on enacting the registration process would be better spent on getting tougher on criminals and providing more resources for our police departments."

While McCrae has accepted the fact that during her campaign contacts with the voters, the gun control legislation issue will continue to surface, and she doesn't mind dealing with it, she feels it is hampering the discussion of the issues which are important on a provincial level and which should be debated. "Let's deal with the provincial issues during this campaign," she suggests.

Editorial

The first step

Have we turned the corner in our search for a health care plan with which the community can live, or are we being led down another leg of an endless maze?

The Acting Health Services Board has been told that a "road map" to the capital planning process is in hand and the board can now lead the community forward one step at a time. The report by the chairman of the restructuring committee, Ted Wilkes, sounded promising at last Wednesday's meeting. He spoke of Ministry of Health representatives being keen to get the process moving, of a tight time-line that would deliver results in a short (relatively speaking, for the Ministry of Health) period of time, and a process that will begin its deliberations based on the recommendation of the Acting Health Services Board of last year....that the acute care beds be consolidated at the Haliburton Hospital, that the 30 new long term care beds be located there, that Hyland Crest be upgraded and that a meaningful emergency health care facility, operating 24 hours a day with a number of what was termed observation beds, be attached to Hyland Crest to meet the needs of residents on the west side of the county and northern Victoria and Peterborough counties.

This road map from which the restructuring committee will be working, provides a step-by-step process that will lead the board and the community out of the planning stage and into what some like to call the bricks and mortar.

This, of course, is welcome news. For far too long the community has planned, and dreamed, gathered funds and tried to find some stability for the medical community. During that time, people have become disillusioned and disheartened by the process, cynical about anything at all happening and have watched in dismay as, rather than a new improved medical model appearing, services have eroded.

There are a number of metaphors that spring to mind with this latest announcement. Is this the proverbial light at the end of the tunnel, which some might say is not daylight but a train heading toward us at full steam? Or could this be the first step with which each long journey begins?

We can hope it is the latter, but know that only time will tell.

No complaints from Hodgson when spending announcements were made

Editor:

I wish to comment on the article appearing in your newspaper regarding the comments made by Chris Hodgson MPP entitled "Last Gasp Spending Must End" (April 17). As I recall, I heard no complaints from Chris when that announcement was made.

Premier Rae told the Toronto Star that in the final quarter of this fiscal year from January to the end of March they have spent less than in any other year since the N.D.P. formed the government!

I also noticed in his article that he complains about the social contract and taxes raising 33 times. With recent cuts made by Ottawa and the statements made by both the Liberal and Tory leaders of doing away with thousands of civil service jobs, people with social contract days still have a job!

In a brochure that Mike Harris sent, (requesting money) he was complaining that the N.D.P. had raised taxes 65 times! These two leaders want to be the next government but they do have a problem counting!

After reading an article in the Toronto Star quoting policies of Mike Harris and all his proposed cuts the people in the public service might be glad of "Rae" days. Mike McCracken, chief economist at Informatuica, an economic consulting firm in Ottawa, says all that Mike Harris's policies will do is make the rich in Ottawa richer and most of the taxpayers know that is the Tory policy in Ontario or Ottawa!

Quite noticeably, Chris Hodgson's office does not have handicap accessibility while John O'Reilly's office does and it was a requirement when we were looking for an office after the last election. The Tories would consider the handicapped a "special interest" group and have accused the N.D.P. of looking after too many "special interest" groups. As we all know, people are not handicapped by choice and, in my view, should have all the same benefits from the government as the rest of us.

Spend money on education

Editor:

As a police officer I have listened to and read with interest the continuing debate on firearms control.

Compulsory registration of all firearms (handguns are already registered) will have as much eff crimes as compulsory registration of motor vehicles has on impaired drivers.

If our true goal is reducing crime, let's have compulsory registration of all home entertainment units. There are many more TVs, stereos, and VCRs stolen than firearms and we are far more likely to come across them. Police officers could then get warrants to search any home they have reasonable grounds to believe contains these items, whether legally possessed or otherwise. This is the manner in which the new legislation plans on dealing with owners of firearms.

The only effective ways to change a behaviour are education and deterrence. Spend the 85 to 500 million dollars that registration will cost, on educating the people of Canada that violence is not an acceptable way to resolve disputes and make the punishment severe enough to act as a deterrent. A deterrent is created when the punishment is certain (minimum sentence) and severe enough to make the offence unattractive. That is, a prison term as opposed to a fine or probation. Increasing maximum sentence has little or no effect. Break and enter of a residence, for example, has a maximum sentence of life imprisonment.

I was very sorry that I had to leave so suddenly but this was due to circumstances beyond my control. I will certainly miss everybody and of course the nurses at the Minden Hospital with whom I had worked for such a long time.

'Back to the land' is coming back

Black 'n White
by Arthur Black

How ya gonna keep 'em down on the farm
After they've seen Par-ee?
old song title

When I was a kid growing up in -- I confess, Toronto -- one of my favourite getaways was The Farm.

It was a couple of hours drive west of Hogtown, out in the southwestern Ontario bush north of Fergus. A hundred acres of pasture, wheat fields and woodlot, and it was home to my Uncle Roy and my Aunt Belle. No TV. No stereo. Oil lamps for illumination.

It was what is referred to nowadays as a "mixed farm". Which is to say my Aunt Belle and Uncle Roy raised a little bit of everything -- chickens, cattle, wheat, barley, apples potatoes, onions, turnips, beets, hay, straw...and incidentally, ten kids.

Not to mention the by-products of the same -- extra-large eggs with yolks the colour of a Bahamas sunset; creamy warm milk right out of the bucket; beefsteak thick as a land developer's billfold and home-made bread, steaming fresh from the oven.

It was a wonderful way of life -- and as doomed as the Ojibwa and Huron ways of life it replaced generations earlier.

The idea of a mixed farm is impossibly quaint here on the doorstep of the twenty-first century. Today, farmers are...well, not farmers, for starters. They call themselves beef producers or soybean specialists or poultry raisers.

My Uncle Roy kept a herd of six Holstein milkers he called by name. Modern dairymen lose that many cows in a bad month.

Specialization is the name of the game today. My aunt used to send the kids on egg hunts around the barnyard. We'd try to figure out where Flossie or Pansy had decided to lay their eggs this week.

In a modern egg operation, the hens have no place to hide anything, including themselves. They live in wire cages piled in tiers. Their vitaminized, antibiotic-ed, hormone-goosed food pellets come by on one conveyor belt and their eggs leave on another.

Increasingly, it seems that modern farms aren't farms at all. They're protein/carbohydrate factories run by chart-watching, computer-punching biological engineers.

There's just one small problem with the Brave New Agricultural World we've created. The managers of these hi-tech operations aren't much better off than the farmers of my Uncle's era. They're still working twice as hard as most folks, still getting bushwhacked by bad weather, worse markets and predatory bank managers.

And they've been demoted from farmer, husbander and custodian of a plot of land...to foreman of a branch plant in an uncertain economy.

It makes for a pretty depressing prospect -- or it would if I hadn't happened to see the results of a survey recently published by the Trends Research Institute of Rhinebeck, New York.

Here's a quote from the survey:

"A confluence of natural, social and economic forces is sowing the seeds of a back-to-the-land trend that will bloom into an agricultural revival in North America."

Ironically, the current economic slump we're going through figures to help in the back to the land revival.

All those workers being tossed out of jobs? The Trends Research Institute says that's going to lead to a rapid exodus from the Middle Class. "Legions of people", it predicts, "will be forced to change their lifestyles to survive."

Well, if I had to choose between a lifetime of flipping burgers for McDonalds or watching the seasons change on a farm, I know what I'd go for.

The forecasters at the Institute say that the trend back to the farms is now only in its infancy, but will flourish throughout the next century "as Industrial Age factory farms are supplanted by kitchen gardens and microfarms."

Microfarms. Sort of like...the one I remember visiting north of Fergus 40 years ago.

My Uncle Roy and Aunt Belle. Just slightly ahead of their time.

Punishment should act as a deterrent police officer says

The normal sentence on a first offence is probation.

The delegates at a General Meeting of the Ontario Provincial Police Association voted unanimously not to support the Coalition for Gun Control and to have our delegates carry that message to the Canadian Police Association. Through effort made by the OPPA and the Saskatchewan Police Association, the CPA have moderated their position and now will only support the legislation if changes are made.

I distributed MP John O' Reilly's Questionnaire for the constituents of Victoria-Haliburton at my office. In excess of 80% of the members who responded are not in favour of a national registry for all firearms.

As the time comes to vote on this issue our Members of Parliament should be asking themselves whether their constituents want more "gun control" or do they want to reduce violent crime?

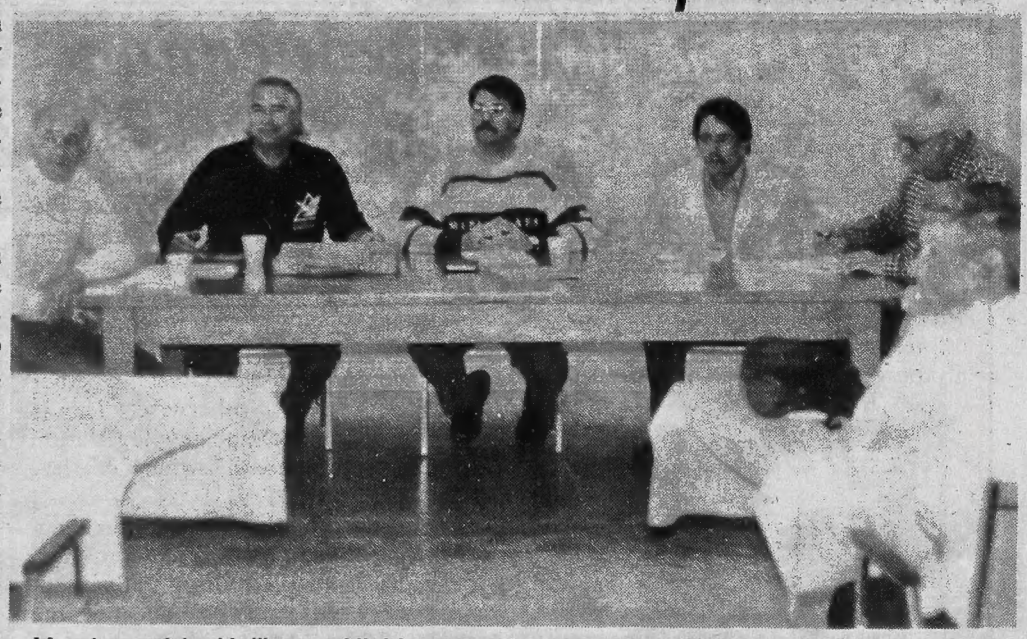
Promotion showcases the Highlands

'Get acquainted' weekend planned

Business leaders from around Haliburton County met May 4 to discuss marketing initiatives for the county. Among ideas discussed was a 'get acquainted' weekend for the county.

Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce president Brian Dean explains, "We invite folks to come up for a day and they can stay overnight. There would be special packages offered by the various resorts. There would be certain prices offered for gasoline... There would be special menus offered through all of the restaurants... There would be stations set up at each entrance to the county... All of those who are taking part in it would be on a county-wide map, and everybody gets a copy of this map, and folks tour around to the resorts and travel through the hamlets and villages just to see what the county is like and what it has to offer. This has been tried in other areas... and has proven to be successful."



Members of the Haliburton Highlands business community met earlier this month at Hart Lodge to discuss joint marketing opportunities. Leading the discussion are, from the left the left, Wayne Cowling of Hart Lodge, Larry Tupling and Brian Brown of the Haliburton Highlands Chamber of Commerce, Rick Tustin of Red Umbrella Inn and Brian Dean of president of the Chamber of Commerce.

The idea, says Dean, is to do this every year at the same time — possibly once in May or June to promote the summer/fall season, and once in September to promote the fall/winter tourist season. Naturally, however, this means the community really has to unite behind the initiative to really make it a success.

Dean says the group is still looking at exactly how to advertise the event, but that there was a great deal of support for the project, and it is likely the first such weekend will indeed take place before the summer. "With the support that was offered, we were very encouraged," he says.

Minden and Haliburton players unite to form triple A team

Local boys to play for Central Ontario Selects major atoms, based in Lindsay

by Jerry Grozelle

A team comprised mostly of Minden and Haliburton area boys will be playing Triple A summer hockey this season in the major atom division.

Head coach Brian Shaw of Minden has recruited players from as far as Bobcaygeon to build a competitive summer hockey team. Home ice for the Haliburton County Huskies will be the Woodville Arena. That is where the team's practices will be held.

One of the things Shaw likes about this team is the fact that it is bringing Minden and Haliburton boys together. There are currently five Minden area boys on the team, six from Haliburton and two from Bobcaygeon and one from Fenelon Falls. Dan Nielsen, Josh Shaw, Philip Neville, Philip Greer and Kent Greer are the Minden area boys. The Haliburton area players include Ryan Wood, Jeff Wilson, Shane Campbell, Chris Nimigon, Jamie Luck and Warren Cooper. Brothers Carl and Bob Cousineau are the Bobcaygeon representatives on the team.

"They get along really well," Shaw said. "The Haliburton kids are a great bunch of kids."

Rick Woods, who coached his Haliburton Huskies team to the all-Ontario finals last year, is one of the assistant coaches, along with Barry Shaw, a veteran coach with the Minden Minor Hockey Association. The manager is Paul Wilson.

The team will play exhibition games between tournaments. Shaw said that his team will play in a tournament in Lindsay and he is negotiating for spots in a Wasaga Beach tournament and one in Arnprior.

"We don't want to go full scale," Shaw said. "We're just trying to get the kids involved. They're going into full contact this year, so we're trying to teach them contact."

Shaw says the team won't be on the road every weekend. It will be run on a trial basis to see how it goes.

"It appears we're very competitive with the bigger centres," Shaw said. "We've got quality players. We don't have so much in quantity. The kids

Determination, and perhaps a little bit of apprehension, is etched in the face of a competitor as he makes his way down the course at the Minden Wild Water Preserve. Kayakers from across Canada were competing at the preserve for places on the nation's World Cup team. See next week's paper for the results.

Summer hockey team will play exhibition, tournaments

we've got are really good players... really good, coachable kids."

Shaw says he thinks that with the quality of hockey in Triple A, Minden and Haliburton will have to combine their talent. He said he thinks the quality of hockey is dropping and to keep the better players interested, they will have to play against stronger competition, even if that means moving up a group.

"It's happening in some of the other centres," Shaw said. "Oakwood and Little Britain have combined their centres. They're called Mariposa now. And Omemee and Ops have combined teams. I think that's the way they're going to have to go."

About the Minden-Haliburton rivalry, Shaw says: "The kids get together in high school and play football and hockey together and they become best friends.

"There is nothing wrong with a rivalry," he stresses, "if it is taken for what it is -- instead of getting personal."

He said that he doesn't like the politics involved in the perceived rift between Haliburton and Minden.

"I think that's got to stop," he said. "It's not the kids, it's the parents. We don't have any problems between the Minden and Haliburton kids at all."

He says the main thing is to give the kids some hockey knowledge. He adds that with the coaching experience of his brother and Rick Woods, they can all learn from each other in the process as well.

The season will run until August 1.

Roller blade hockey getting a foothold in Minden

by Jerry Grozelle

Roller blade hockey anyone?

Jeff Howe, Glenn Hall and a few others have been thinking about starting a men's rollerblade hockey league for about a year. They have now taken steps to get something started in Minden. The arena has been booked from 7 to 9 p.m. on June 1 (providing the concrete is dry) for the first session.

Howe says he has about 16 people who have shown a definite interest and dozens more who seem to be interested but haven't made a commitment. Howe adds that the organizers had hoped for enough players to form a four-team league, but unless there are a lot more players, they will start with two teams and see how interest builds.

Arena time with the ice out is less costly and Howe says that most of the potential players will already have hockey equipment that can do double duty on the rollerblade court. The major expense would be the in-line rollerblade skates themselves, which start at about $200.

"Quite a few guys have been talking about it, but I think a lot of them are just waiting to see how it's going to go before they get too serious about buying skates," Howe said.

The league, when it gets going, will be for players 16 years of age and older. That's a bit younger than the men's hockey league, but Howe says: "To get a few more guys out, we thought we'd drop it down to 16."

Rollerblade hockey is a sport that is growing dramatically. They already have professional leagues in the United States, with some of the games telecast on such stations as The Sports Network.

"By the sounds of it, it's getting pretty big everywhere else," Howe said. "They say it's eventually going to be bigger than ice hockey. I read an article, I think it was in Macleans, that said by this time next year, there will be more people in Canada with roller blades than ice skates."

As far as official rules go, Howe says he hasn't been able to locate a rule book for roller blade hockey. A couple of things Howe is sure about are that there will be no body contact and no slap shots.

"They have a puck with roller balls in it," Howe said. "It's about the same weight as a hockey puck and apparently you can shoot it a lot harder."

Organizers of the local rollerblade hockey haven't decided yet whether or not to use the pucks that have been developed specifically for the sport. The dilemma centres around the need for full equipment with the puck. Obviously, players would have the same equipment requirements as with ice hockey. Howe says that it could get very hot wearing such equipment inside the arena during the summer.

An option is the use of a ball, similar to ball hockey.

Howe said he plans to have both available at the opening night and the players can decide which they want to use.

"I think with that puck, you'd pretty well want to have all your equipment on, Howe said. "But then again, you don't want to be so hot that you can't bear it either."

"I was hoping to have four teams and form a league," Howe said. "But it's looking like we might just have two teams and play once a week. I'm sure guys will get interested in it and maybe next year go for the four teams.

Howe said that one of the advantages of playing roller blade hockey during the summer is that it will keep the participants in shape for the ice hockey season. It is good exercise even for those who don't play ice hockey.

The ice hockey player has an added advantage if the local league decides to go with the puck instead of a ball. He already has most of the necessary equipment.

Anyone interested in participating in the men's 16 and over roller blade hockey in Minden or for more information, contact Jeff Howe at 286-3988 or Glenn Hall at 286-4941.

Canoe Festival set for Kinmount

Fun event to raise funds for Heritage Parkland Project

A series of canoe races on the Burnt River starting at Kinmount promise to be fun for participants and spectators alike. The first Kinmount Canoe Festival, which is expected to become an annual event, will take place on Sunday, May 28. It will be for paddlers of all ages and skill levels. The emphasis of the event is fun for everyone and the goal is to raise funds for the Kinmount Heritage Parklands Project.

Ray Kettlewell, a former marathon canoe racer, along with a small committee of helpers, has organized the event. He said 10 to 12 people have volunteered to help out on the day of the races.

"We've had great response from the local business community," Kettlewell said. "All we're hoping for now is a good turnout."

Kettlewell said that the committee needed sponsorship for seven plaques. He thought the business community had been hit hard for donations already, but he was pleased when those sponsorships were "snapped up in no time."

Kettlewell said that the theme is family fun and he admits that the 1995 event will be a learning experience. The popularity of the various events will be evaluated and expanded upon for the second annual event in 1996.

This year's event will feature seven-kilometre races for men, women, mixed pairs and young people aged 12 to 16.

"The service club challenge race, for members of all service clubs, Legion branches and township and county council members, will undoubtedly reveal the true movers and shakers in our area," Kettlewell said.

Besides the service club challenge, there will be a men's challenge and a women's challenge, both for paddlers 17 years of age and older.

The mixed men and women's race is like the ark -- one of each, and the youth challenge will test the skill of those paddlers in the 12 to 16 age range.

A slalom race will test the dexterity of those who enter.

Trophies and prizes will be awarded to the first, second and third place winners.

"If you can only paddle a few strokes, you can still enter the Fun Paddle and have a chance to win a prize, which will be drawn at random," Kettlewell said.

"For those with more imagination than brawn, there's a decorated canoe contest and parade. We'll bet it's the first anywhere," he added. "Turn a canoe into a parade float, decorate it from bow to stern, and decorate the paddlers too. Paddle your creation in the parade and you could win a trophy."

The parade will take place from the bridge to Rokeby Lumber and back. The decorated canoe contest and parade is open to everyone, including individuals, families, businesses and organizations. Only canoes will be allowed and they must be paddled in the parade. No motors and no other watercraft will be allowed.

Awards will be presented on the basis of beauty, imagination and humour.

The lack of a canoe is not a problem (or an excuse). Rental canoes will be available at the waterfront.

Registration will start at 9:30 a.m.

HHSS seniors earn three second place OFSAA honours

by Ron Yake

The birds were soaring in eastern Ontario at the Ontario Federation of School Athletic Associations badminton tournament held in Cornwall from May 3 to 6. The top badminton players from across Ontario gathered at this prestigious event to compete for Ontario's top honours.

HHSS competitors qualified on April 25 at the COSSA (Central Ontario) senior badminton tournament held in Lindsay where they had to place either first or second in their event. Not only did five students qualify (an HHSS record), but the team also captured the trophy for being the best senior badminton team in central Ontario. (This covers the area south of Port Hope and east to Napanee, a district consisting of over 35 schools.) Placing second were Jonathan Bishop and Lindsay Francis in mixed doubles, Stacey Bunn and Jaime Kent in ladies' doubles, and Anna Tomlinson in ladies' singles. Will Wallace placed fourth in men's singles.

Jonathan Bishop and Lindsay Francis -- 2nd, mixed doubles
Stacey Bunn and Jaime Kent -- 2nd, ladies' doubles
Anna Tomlinson -- 2nd, ladies' singles

At the three day OFSAA tournament, HHSS players exhibited superb play and sportsmanship. All players brought their play to a higher level. Anna Tomlinson finished the season as the 30th best ladies' single player in Ontario. Jaime Kent and Stacey Bunn placed in the top twenty six. Lindsay Francis and Jonathan Bishop, after defeating the team ranked second, went on to place seventh in mixed doubles. This represents the best placing any badminton team from HHSS has recorded at the OFSAA tournament.

These are all remarkable results considering that more than 16,000 students participate in the game of badminton in Ontario. Congratulations to all the players on a great season.

Bid made to open more Crown land

by Andrew Milne

A ratepayers association has asked the government of the Muncipalities of Sherborne et al to lobby for the development of Crown land in the region.

Currently, sale of Crown land for cottage property developments is frozen throughout Southern Ontario — a policy put in place in the late seventies partially in response to increasing congestion on lake fronts.

The Municipalities of Sherborne et al, however, are 93 percent Crown land. The Dorset Ratepayers Association says this makes for expensive services and stifled development in a region that has seen its share of economic bad news. Furthermore, prior to the freezing of Crown land development, some of the lake shores in the region had been surveyed for development. Infrastructure, in the form of roads, hydro, and telephone access is also readily accessible for many of these lakes, says the association.

Association member Ron MacKay says there are four lakes in particular they would like considered, since they are ideal in all these respects — they are Crown Lake, Stoney Lake, Deer Lake, and Clear Lake (the Clear Lake they are considering is not the same Clear Lake associated with the Area of Natural and Scientific Interest recently declared in the Kennisis Lake area, but one farther north, near Kawagama Lake).

Sherborne's government has subsequently contacted other municipalities in the county to determine whether they can count on support in such a lobby. Sherborne reeve Ross Rabjohn reports that one other municipality reports the area it governs is 76 percent Crown land, but no one else has quite the percentage Sherborne has.

Says Rabjohn, "We sent out the letter to see if maybe we could have some support around the county for the idea, and then we would like to put this proposal to the present government and to all the political parties. At election time it's maybe appropriate to look at it and see how the parties feel about it — what's their stand on it — would they consider opening up a little more."

"We are very conscious of the environmental concerns with regard to this," says Rabjohn. "Some of the lots were very small the way they were surveyed. We would probably want to look at that. But we're open to anything — we certainly don't want to overload the shoreline on any lake. But we have some lakes here with no development on them at all. In one case I can think of a lake with one cottage. Surely they might stand a little development without hurting anything."

ELM program

Introducing young students to the environment

by Misty Bennett,
HHSS student reporter

Spring has returned and with it came the second successful ELM experience. ELM (Energy, Life-style and Matter) is "an outdoor, adventure-based learning program designed to increase students' level of environmental awareness," states one of the organizers, Meaghan Obee.

ELM is designed to allow elementary students to experience nature, learn a little more about the natural world and have some fun at the same time.

ELM began last year as a pilot project run by the OAC biology class with help from the school's drama classes. ELM has undergone some changes since last year and has evolved to meet the demands of the local elementary school children.

This year, three groups were able to benefit from this exciting, day-long adventure. Last year, only one class visited the program. Each group was accommodated on a separate day over the last three weeks.

The ELM trail includes between 12 and 15 different activities for the students. There are 23 activities in total on the trail, with various combinations used depending on the age group or grade level.

High school student Max Weber introduces youngsters to a facet of nature at one of the stations on the HHSS ELM trail.

The student participants were drawn from the local elementary schools including Mrs. Berry's Grade five students from Archie Stouffer Elementary School, Mrs. Schell's grade four students from J. D. Hodgson School and from Gooderham, the grade one students of Mr. Hopkins' class.

On the trail the students are kept busy with many activities and skits. Some short plays are performed for the students and are followed with an activity related to the environmental message in the skit. These activities, co-ordinated by the drama students, allow the trail leaders to "let down their hair", thereby generating more enthusiasm and participation from the younger students.

Fourteen trail leaders are chosen from the high school students. There are also three special needs students who work one-on-one with the physically or mentally challenged.

The participants take mementoes home with them at the end of the day. The grade four students received activity books, the grade five students received colouring books while the primary students collected souvenirs from each of the activities.

ELM is a course that involves many of the students at the high school. Many of the school's courses have been adapted to tie in to the ELM project. Among the courses that have come within the ELM umbrella are OAC Music and Bio-science, grade 11 English, grade 11 Art, and all Drama and Biology classes. While only a few students are drawn from the Music and Bio-science classes, in other courses, participation in the ELM project is a class-wide responsibility.

"HHSS is the only high school in North America where everything related to the ELM project is done by the school," Obee stated. "The learning experience takes place totally out of doors and the design of the program is completely original." The high school students do everything themselves, from organizing and writing the activities to creating the props. This is most certainly a project for which our high school can be suitably proud.

Good luck to future ELM organizers. Let's be a role model for other high schools.

Remembering....

While the fiftieth anniversary of the end of the war in Europe on May 8 provided a reason for celebration, it was also a time to remember. In particular, the members of Branch 636 of the Royal Canadian Legion, Minden, many of them veterans of the conflict, spent a few moments at the community cenotaph to honour those who did not return from World War Two. The Legion members and veterans were joined by members of the community in the special service, silently expressing their appreciation for the sacrifice of so many.

AH&M shopping for new computer system for municipal office staff

by Jerry Grozelle

Ken Deyo, a consultant with Auto-Administrator, spent an hour trying to convince Anson, Hindon and Minden council of its need to buy a new $67,000 computer hardware and software package.

Deyo evaluated the current system that the municipality is using. That system has been in use for about 12 years and Deyo said it is "fairly antiquated".

Deyo told council Auto-Administrator is Canada's largest municipal system vendor. He said that all but three municipalities in Haliburton County use systems supplied by his company.

Improvements would be "almost immeasurable.": consultant says

Given the age of the current system being used by municipal staff, Deyo termed the proposed change of equipment and software a "significant jump." He said the package he is recommending will do the job without overkill.

"It is a system that will meet your needs for a reasonable window of time," Deyo said. He added that the municipality should expect to upgrade its system every three to four years.

The most obvious advantage that the municipality would realize, according to Deyo, is a significant improvement in productivity, with a corresponding reduction in cost.

When asked by councillor Jerry Rome what kind of improvements the municipality would realize, Deyo admitted he was being a bit immodest when he said the improvements would be "almost immeasurable."

Deyo said that council should start seeing noticeable improvements in staff productivity within three months after the new equipment is installed and running. He added that since staff members are already computer literate, those expected improvements could be noticed even earlier.

"The speed of the current hardware is very slow," he said, adding that there is "very little free space" left in the old system's memory, which further complicates and slows down its operation.

The recommended system features a Pentium based server, with 486, 33 megahertz terminals. The Pentium server, which would be the brains of the network, is the latest technology. It is upgradable as computer technology advances. The new system would feature a one gigabyte hard drive. Deyo explained that it would have about 150 times the data storage capacity of the current system.

Another advantage of the new system would be its ability to update information to everyone connected to the network automatically. He said that would eliminate any time delays in information availability associated with each operator having to input data separately. The human error factor would also be virtually eliminated.

"It would streamline the process and keep all information up to date, Deyo said.

The guarantee on the package impressed council.

"We're the first in Ontario to provide a 100 per cent buy-back guarantee for up to 15 months," Deyo explained.

He said that the buy-back guarantee is good for 12 months, with a three-month period where the company would try to rectify any problems the municipality might have. If the problems can't be resolved within that period, the municipality would have the option of selling the system back to Auto-Administrator for the full purchase price. Deyo said he is confident that the staff of Anson, Hindon and Minden would be happy with the new system.

Along with installation, Auto-Administrator would provide the training necessary to get municipal employees up and running. In addition, a 1-800 telephone number would be available for questions.

Another feature that would be made available with the recommended equipment is E-mail (electronic mail). Instead of a paper trail of motes and messages, all staff would be able to post messages to anyone within the computer system. Deyo said that eliminates the possibility of an important message being misplaced, as often happens when a note is placed on someone's desk.

The new system would also offer, through modem connection, access to CompuServe and the Internet for the exchange of information. Deyo said that many government ministries are now on-line, giving the municipality with this type of technology to access government information and the ability to communicate with government agencies almost instantly.

Deyo promised that the disruption associated with the change-over would be minimal, if the municipality decides to purchase the package.

The new system would be MS-DOS (Microsoft Disk Operating System) based. The company is now working on a Windows based operating system and Deyo said the municipality would automatically receive the Windows upgrade as soon as it is available.

Council was assured that the system is 100 per cent secure. Deyo said that unauthorized access to municipal data through the computer's modem is not possible.

Kinmount Branch of Royal Canadian Legion formed in 1946

by Shirley Demuth

In the early months of 1946 a group of veterans who had just returned from World War 2 (1939-1945) gathered information on the procedure to form a Branch in Kinmount.

Before receiving the Charter, there was a lot of ground work to be done. This was accomplished and the Charter was granted with the following names being listed: Rev. E. Sigston, Charlie Cummings, Dr. M. G. Ranney, Richard Austin, William Austin, Wes Baker, A. Austin, A. R. Douglas, W. Gilleland, Norm Gilmour, J. Gilmour, J. Mansfield, R. McGrath, E. R. McGrath, E. Taylor, P. Wellstood, R. Currah, B. Young, W. Mark, Michael Cummings and L. Emmerson. The Charter was granted in November of 1946 as a British Empire Service League -- John McGrath, Branch 441.

Much consideration was given to the name for the new Legion. Norm Gilmour, Dick Austin and Percy Wellstood suggested that the Branch be named after John McGrath since he was the first man to join the forces from Kinmount. He was the youngest to join and he was the first to die.

John McGrath, 1939

The members of the Charter agreed to this name if permission would be granted by his parents (Thomas and Phyllis McGrath). His parents granted their permission.

John McGrath joined the army at 17 years of age, at the start of the War. He lived across the road and halfway down the hill (where Al Young's House is now) from the present Legion, with his parents and two brothers, Edward (Ted) and Reginald.

Before joining the army John McGrath worked at A.A. Williamson's Store.

McGrath was baptized and confirmed in St. James Anglican Church, of which he was a regular member, until he went overseas. He attended the Kinmount Public and Continuation Schools.

McGrath joined the 45th Division of the army out of Lindsay, Ontario at the age of 17 years. He was posted overseas after a brief training.

Norm Gilmour remembers seeing McGrath in early 1944 in London, England. John was "Killed in Action" on July 24, 1944 in Normandy. Someone who was also in that battle came back to say that John McGrath had been killed by a sniper. He made the supreme sacrifice at the young age of 20.

The Communion Rail and Lectern, along with the Lectern Bible, were placed in St. James Anglican Church in his memory by relatives and church members. These memorials were dedicated to his memory in July of 1948 at the church's 65th Anniversary.

It is interesting to note that the Kinmount area had less than 1,000 population at the start of World War two, but 71 enlisted in the armed forces.

The army was the most popular branch of the services, receiving 49 enlistments. The air force had 16 men and women, the navy had two, the merchant marine had one and there were three Nursing Sisters from the area.

Before obtaining a building of their own, Legion meetings were held in the Community Hall (which is now occupied by the Community Police Office), St. James Parish Hall and the St. James Anglican Rectory.

Once the new Branch had its charter, the members voted-in their first president, Reverend Earl Sigston, in 1946. The secretary was Comrade Charlie Cummings and the treasurer was Dr. Malcolm Banney.

The first building they purchased was from the Butts family. Itwas situated on the same property as the present legion, but closer to Highway 503 and Bobcaygeon Road. Previously this building had been a school.

One of the main reasons for the purchase being made in Galway Township was that they were able to get a liquor licence since Peterborough County (which Galway is a part of) was "wet", and the other counties in the area were not.

The Legion's Club Room occupied one section and the other section was rented to Cde. George Tippett and his family. The first bar stewards were Mickey Mansfield, Carl Meagher and Bert Young.

The town of Kinmount was concerned about the Legion's close proximity to the local schoolhouse. In fact, a petition was circulated through the village protesting the Legion's application for a liquor licence. An agreement was reached that the Legion would not open before 4:30 p.m., since most of the children would be gone home by then.

Later, the complete building was occupied by the Branch with the rented section being used for the meetings and a lounge for the ladies. Women were only allowed in the Legion back then if they were accompanied by a member and only on Saturdays. Art Owens was one member who fought to get the first woman veteran admitted as a member in the early years, a time when most of the members seemed to want to keep it a men-only organization. Maybe it was a sign of those times.

One interesting item of the early years (up until 1983) was that after every monthly General Meeting a snack was served to all the members who stayed after the meeting. This usually consisted of cheese, pickles, crackers and head cheese. A plate of these items was placed on every table. This food was usually purchased from Joe Hancock's General Store in Irondale.

Branch 441 was named after John McGrath, youngest from Kinmount to enlist and the first to die in action

This first building was heated by a wood furnace. Volunteer members kept the fire going around the clock during the cold winter months.

In time, it was decided that the Branch was finally in the position to construct a new building. This was a big project for such a small membership. The two local lumber companies (J. Austin and Sons, and the Phillips Lumber Co.) were instrumental in backing the Branch for supplies purchased through them. The Branch showed its gratitude to these companies by making their sons Honourary Members if they so desired. The building was constructed mostly by volunteer work from the Branch's members. This had to be done after the volunteers' regular working hours and on Saturdays.

This new building was completed and opened in 1957. In the spring of 1965 the mortgage was burned.

The dues, in the early years of the Legion, were $1. This was before the organization became so large. The name eventually changed from the "British Empire Service" to the "Royal Canadian Legion".

Legion Parade, Kinmount Fair 1955

In the early years of the Legion a dance was held every Saturday night. Local members and out-of-town members enjoyed participating. Norm Graham was the violin player, Gerry Silver was the guitar player and singer. Elaine Strauss also played guitar and sang, while Bert Bowron played banjo. Albert Crego and Basil Stevenson were the main square dance callers. The hall was filled every Saturday night. At the end of the evening a collection plate was passed around to pay the band.

Bill Lilley started the Branch Bingo on Friday nights. He did this for about 16 years. He started the 50-50 to go toward the Benevolent Fund, selling many of the tickets in Toronto where he worked for Simpson's.

It wasn't until 1966 that women and men were allowed to mingle in the Legion (club room). Women and men were permitted to be together at the Saturday night dance but were only allowed into the club section on Friday nights and Saturdays. During these times they had to be in a separate room and the door had to be kept closed. (This room is now the TV room.)

The doors to the Legion were never locked in the early days and the Vets could go in at anytime to play cards, darts or reminisce. Nothing was ever stolen or damaged.

In the Legion now is a "Memorial Board" where all the deceased Vets from the Kinmount area are listed. Bernice Owens was instrumental in setting this up in 1991.

The Kinmount Legion also maintains the cenotaph on the main street. The site was originally the home of Sam Henry. When the house burned in 1922, the site was eventually turned over to the town and the cenotaph was erected as a memorial to those who fell in the first World War. Five names were added after the last war.

It is a reminder of Kinmount's proud service record in two World Wars.

50-YEAR VETERANS: Several 50-year veterans were honoured recently by the Kinmount Branch, including Bill Holstock, Richard Hilyer, James Allen, Norm Gilmore, Art Owens and Norm Silver. They are flanked by president Joe Kelly and Zone commander Sally Bonner (left) and MPP Chris Hodgson and Awards chair Eileen Sienko.

Arctic visitors discover the delights (and bites) of the south

by Andrew Milne

Ben Allakariallak is 20 feet from the ground and 2,500 km from home.

Allakariallak is one of fifteen children from Resolute Bay who was in the Minden region last week as part of a two week visit to the south. When we visited with him, he was on the climbing wall at Kinark's outdoor centre, north of Minden. Kinark's program coordinator Debbie Dew calls encouragement to him from the ground below.

Resolute Bay is located on the south shore of Cornwallis Island, in the Arctic Archipelago north of mainland Canada. Next to the tiny settlement of 180-200 Inuit are an airport, an RCMP outpost, and a weather station. At around 71 degrees north, and about 200 km from the North Magnetic Pole, Resolute Bay is a relatively busy port — tours to the pole often stop there.

The fifteen children visiting this area are on a field trip from Resolute's Quarmartalik School — two weeks in the south, as their teacher Max Vendervoet explains it, "to see where most of the stuff we are using comes from — outboard motors, Ski-doos, cars, food, the government."

Kinark's wall is a wooden structure with formed concrete handholds bolted firmly to its surface. Climbers grip with their hands and feet to climb. Allakariallak does well — nearing the top. In a safety harness roped off from above, he's in no danger if he slips.

He yells that he's finished, and Dew lowers him back to the ground.

The fifteen have been to Ottawa to see the Parliament Buildings and the Museum of Civilisation, to Toronto to visit landmarks like the CN Tower. Kinark is the last stop — part of a quick look at the rural south. Tuesday night, the fifteen will climb into a bus that will take them to the Ottawa International Airport, from which a series of connecting flights will take them back to the north.

They happened to come here because before going North to Resolute to work in the school, Vendervoet had worked at Kinark, and at the ill-fated Browndale special education project which took place here in the seventies. Kinark and the Minden area, he thought, would give the kids an idea what the south looks like outside the cities.

Reaching for new heights, Ben Allakariallak, of Resolute Bay, scales the climbing wall at Kinark's outdoor centre north of Minden.

So are the kids impressed? Well yes... and no. They're having fun on the wall, and the forest lands make interesting viewing. They've seen a farm ("It was disgusting" one comments later — manure is something, apparently, one rarely encounters on Cornwallis Island).

They've also discovered the environment of the south has a few quirks too — they've from an area too cold for the hordes of insects common to more southerly regions of the Arctic, and they've never met blackflies in the numbers that come out of the woods of Haliburton County to greet them.

Vendervoet finds this funny. "They find it funny when the white people come up north and put big coats on and big boots and then can barely walk," he says, "and they are in a little jacket, and laugh. I tell them, well maybe this is the time for us to laugh, with them acting so crazy from those flies. It's not to shame them, but to show them that everybody comes from somewhere, and everywhere is different."

The kids seem a little shy, and a little tired after their two week tour — questions elicit only very brief answers. Asked what impression of the south she will take home, fourteen year old Brenda Eckalook can only smile shyly and say, "It was fun."

Angie Amagoalik, along as a chaperon, is a special needs assistant with the school. Her teaching duties, she explains, include helping children who are having difficulty with their native Inuktituk language. Like many Native cultures in regular contact with European settlers, the Inuit of Resolute are having difficulty holding on to their own culture, even their own language. Amagoalik sees the children who speak little of their Native language, who can no longer talk to their own grandparents (who may speak no English) without a translator.

Haliburton County Board of Education

Financial Statements December 31, 1994

To the Trustees of the Haliburton County Board of Education:

We have audited the balance sheet of the Haliburton County Board of Education as at December 31, 1994 and the revenue fund statement of operations, the capital fund of operations and the reserve fund statement of continuity for the year then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the school board's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audit.

We conducted our audit in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we plan and perform an audit to obtain reasonable assurance whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation.

In our opinion these financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of the board as at December 31, 1994 and the results of its operations for the year ended in accordance with the accounting principles described in note 1 to the financial statements.

THE AGREEMENT PROVIDES THAT THE GOVERNMENT OF ONTARIO WILL GIVE ANNUAL GRANTS EQUAL TO THE PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST INSTALMENTS REQUIRED BY THE DEBENTURE. THE AGREEMENT SPECIFIES THAT THE OBLIGATION TO REPAY THE DEBENTURE PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST IS CONDITIONAL UPON THE SCHOOL BOARD RECEIVING GRANTS FROM THE GOVERNMENT OF ONTARIO.

BECAUSE THE SCHOOL BOARD HAS NO OBLIGATION TO MAKE THE SEMI-ANNUAL PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYMENTS UNLESS THE GRANTS ARE RECEIVED FROM THE GOVERNMENT OF ONTARIO, THE DEBENTURE LIABILITY IS NOT SHOWN ON THESE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS.

7. SOCIAL CONTRACT

THE SOCIAL CONTRACT ACT REQUIRES THAT SCHOOL BOARDS REDUCE EXPENDITURES BY A SPECIFIC AMOUNT IN THE YEARS 1993 THROUGH 1996. GRANTS WILL BE REDUCED BY A CORRESPONDING AMOUNT EACH YEAR. FOR 1994 THE SOCIAL CONTRACT AMOUNT IS $284,992 AND THIS AMOUNT IS REFLECTED IN THE FINANCIAL STATEMENTS.

Education or traditional ways:

Arctic students face the challenge of the north

"That's how my nephews are with my grandfather," says Amagoalik. "They tend to talk to him in English — which he hates."

Inuktituk is however taught in the school in Resolute. The traditional ways, the basic skills of hunting and fishing and living off the land, are also still taught — some within the walls of the school, and some in the traditional way. There are five or six elders in the village, explains Amagoalik, and they teach what they can.

"They try, yeah," says Amagoalik. "Sometimes kids just watch other people, what they're doing, and learn from that."

There are about 50 children in the Quarmartalik school (the name is from a word meaning the whalebone structures the Tuli people of the area traditionally built for shelter — 'home' or 'home base'). Students from the kindergarten to grade nine levels attend the school. If they wish to go on, they have to go to other, larger settlements, and whether kids should stay in school and further their education, or return to the village of their ancestors and learn the traditional ways, is a difficult decision for the Inuit of Resolute, as it has been in the North for as long as schools have been there.

"That's still a big issue — whether kids should stay in school," says Vendervoet.

Resolute will be one of many Northern settlements to be incorporated into the new territory of Nunavit — a vast area of the Arctic which the Native peoples will govern themselves at the end of this decade. Vendervoet comments that people are looking forward to this event.

"It is a big deal, yes," he says. "For a lot of people it's the end of the world. Everything is going to be great. Everyone is going to be rich."

He smiles ruefully. "I think a lot of people might be disappointed."

Kinark instructor Debbie Dew checks the harness of Joannie Pudluk before he takes his turn on the climbing wall.

Teaching assistant Angie Amagoalik, left and student Brenda Eckalook enjoyed their whirl-wind tour of the south but found our blackflies to be a bit bothersome.

The month of May has been designated Sexual Assault Prevention Month.

In recognition of this designation, Kawartha O.P.P. has joined forced with the Sexual Violence Support and Information Centre of the Kawarthas in an effort to eradicate violence against women.

The majority of sexual assault survivors are young women aged 14 to 24 years and in many cases of sexual assault, the offender is a person with whom the survivor has an acquaintance or dating relationship.

The report of a sexual assault to Kawartha O.P.P., involving women within the previously specified age group, is almost a weekly occurrence.

For the purpose of educating young persons, both male and female, about sexual assault, Kawartha O.P.P. and the Sexual Violence Support and Information Centre of the Kawarthas are making joint presentations to Grade 8 students within the local O.P.P. jurisdiction during the month of May.

This targeted group has been selected because they are fast approaching their transition into secondary school where they may become more vulnerable in situations, such as dating and partying, to which they have not been exposed in elementary school.

It is hoped that students presented with the information will recognize and understand what a sexual assault is by definition, it's prevalence in society, the law as it pertains to sexual assault, how sexual assault affects people, the importance of reporting a sexual assault, and how to reduce the risk of a sexual assault occurring in their own lives.

New executive for Branch 636

Service Clubs
by Allan (Cub) Coneybeare

The month of May will be half over by publication time and still our weather is very cool, especially at night. The blackflies are starting now so that means the fishing will be good.Don't forget to check out the cows before going fishing (contact the writer for more information on the above Ojibwa secret!)

May 3 our annual election of officers was held at Branch 636 with the foloowing results:

President - H.Lloyd Johnson; First Vice - Maurice Winterflood; Second Vice - Don Holden; Secretary - Sally Bonner; Treasurer - Cliff Green; Sergeant-at-Arms - Ken Walsh. Executive: Syd Adamson, Ebby Bishop, Dora Foster, Russ Fair, Fred Cox, Francine Newton, Al Coneybeare and Ethel Baker. The elections were well attended and enthusiastic.

We are saying goodbye as President to Comrade Bill Blyth. Bill did one great job as our leader and we know he'll serve us as an excellent past president along with his chief supporter and sweetheart Gina. We are also gaining a super guy for our new president and leader, H.Lloyd Johnson. He has a big job ahead of him but we recognise we're in capable hands. We are going to get behind Lloyd to ensure a great coming year.

Our branch is very fortunate to have back to back special men.

A good omen...our little robin is back on her nest for the third year. She is a busy little lady sitting on her nest in the tree on the south side entrance to the Branch. Hope she is successful again this year.

Cub's May Classic - After discovering he had the gift of healing, a young evangelist was working his way through a revival-meeting crowd. He demonstrated his powers by making a blind man see, a deaf man hear and a lame woman walk. Finally, he approached a man with a cast on his arm, who suddenly jumped up and stumbled backward. "Keep you hands off me," the man screamed. "I'm on Worker's Comp!"

Note from the Seniors #636 Club - the new executive is as follows: President - Ethel Baker; Secretary - Georgina Parks; Treasurer - Ruth Rice. Board of Directors - Anne Baker, Irene Fuhr, Ellen Holden, Marie Dennie, Harold Parks, Bob Fabian, Jack Chilton, Leanna Bathe. There is a trip planned for June 1 to Woodbine Races leaving Minden at 8:30 a.m. Information 286-3269 or 286-2692.

Member profile

We continue with our profiles on special members of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 636.

Lois Adamson was born in Rowdon, Quebec on August 1, 1922. She attended Rowdon Consolidated School then Sir George Williamson College in Montreal. Lois graduated from St. Mary's General Hospital as a Radiological Technologist (X-Ray) where she worked until 1947.

She married Sydney Adamson in 1946 after he had served four years with the R.C.A.F.. They lived in the Montreal area until 1952 when they transferred to Kitchener, Ontario on a new venture with their three sons Lois was a full time homemaker completing a family of five by 1958.

In 1962 she returned to work at Kitchener-Waterloo Hospital in X-Ray until 1982 when they moved to Minden to operate Jay Lake Tent & Trailer Park until 1988.

In 1984 Comrade Helen Johnson encouraged Lois to join R.C.L. Haliburton 129. After the formation of Branch 636 she transferred and has been active on the executive committee serving as 2nd Vice president, 1st Vice president and President.

Comrade Syd was a member of R.C.L. Waterloo Branch 530 for many years. He also transferred to Minden with some persuasion. He holds an active part on the executive committee finance.

During her years as a homemaker, Lois was active in Church and as president of the Anglican Church Women in Kitchener. Since moving to Minden she is active at St. Paul's Anglican Church. Curling was a new venture in Minden.

Three of their five children are Legion members. Of their eight grandchildren, hopefully some will carry on the Legion tradition.

Don't forget...

...Western Night on Friday, May 26 at 6:30 p.m. BBQ beef and baked beans. Western disc jockey. Dancing, line dancers, dress up in your western attire. $7 per person tickets at the Legion.

...R.C.L. Branch 636 Annual Yard Sale on Saturday, July 8 all day. Any donations to our sale will be gratefully accepted. Pickup is available. Call the legion at 286-4541 or Cub at 286-1214.

...Ladies Auxiliary Annual Bake & Plant Sale. Saturday May 20. For further information call Sheila 286-4666 or Shirley 286-1740.

Minden Rotary hosts seminar

Merchants challenged to prepare for market changes

Business consultant Gerry Gribben has challenge Minden area merchants to be ready for the changes that are just ahead in the world economy. Speaking at the April 26 meeting of the Rotary Club of Minden, he told the Rotarians and business guests from the community, that there are four main forces which will affect the global marketplace:

-Free Trade, which will result in increased competition and the opening of new markets.

-Computerization, which, through instant communications, will make it easier to access markets around the world.

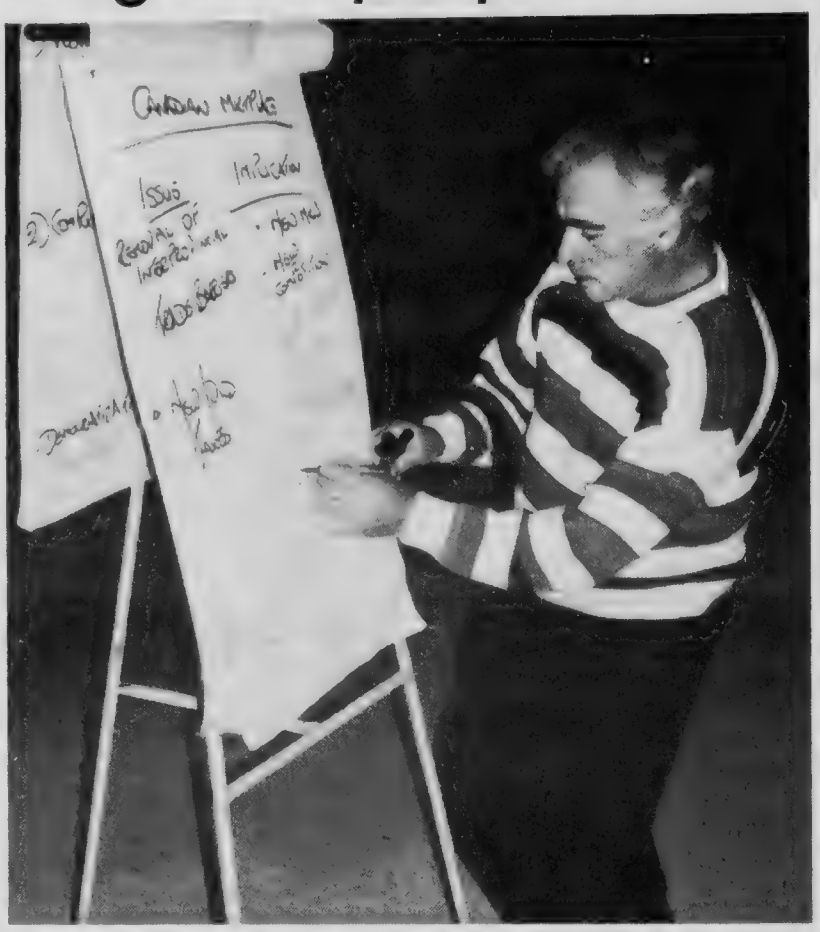
-Democratization, which will result in the removal of barriers and allow more people to travel, leading to an increase in tourism.

-Immigration, with the baby boomer bulge aging and retiring, the replacement of workers will become a challenge with a result that western countries will rely more on immigration to meet the demand for workers, especially in the service sector.

Gribben is a business consultant who is spending several months in Minden while he writes a book. He specializes in consultant services to small and medium sized businesses, helping them to develop plans for dealing with the changing world economy.

Commenting on the Canadian market, (and he prefaced these remarks by noting these were based on the premise that Quebec would remain within Canada) Gribben predicted that barriers to inter-provincial trade will be removed; that governments will be searching for new sources of revenue and hence newer forms of taxation will be developed; and that senior levels of government will continue to "download" responsibilities to lower levels of government. This action will put even greater pressure on the lower levels of government, especially municipalities at the bottom of the ladder.

He predicted that municipal governments will be searching for new ways of reducing costs and there will be increases in the privatization of traditional municipal services. He noted this is already happening in some communities where, for example garbage pick-up, landfill management, snow clearing and other services traditionally handled by municipal staff are being tendered to the private sector.



Business consultant Gerry Gribben provided an interesting insight into marketing into the next century for local business owners. The meeting was hosted by the Rotary Club of Minden.

The consultant then listed ten "industries" which he predicts will experience the greatest growth in the remainder of this decade and into the next century. In order of growth they are:

1. High tech industries such as those related to computer hardware and software.

2. The environment, including the protection of existing situations, rehabilitation of damaged areas and recycling.

3. Agri-business, such as hydroponics.

4. Tourism

5. Construction

6. Peace officer/social worker fields.

7. Teaching, especially teaching English as a second language.

8. Native self-government.

9. Entrepreneurship and private business.

10. Private medical centres.

While he noted it is possible for this area to benefit from any one of those growth industries (except perhaps number 8) the most obvious choice for this area is tourism. He suggested this has the strongest growth potential for the Haliburton Highlands.

Gribben noted that the local Chamber of Commerce was "doing a yeoman service with a budget that is peanuts." He described the approach to funding the Chamber of Commerce as being "penny-wise and pound-foolish. The consultant suggested that there may be value in attempting to enter into a joint promotional effort with the Muskoka region to the west.

Finally he offered the audience the following model for business success:

1. Listen to the market.

2. Have a clear vision of the future...how you think the market will change and how you see your business fitting into those changes.

3. Continually improve your business's processes and practises.

4. Be prepared to adapt to changing conditions...what worked yesterday may not be suitable for tomorrow.

Hot stuff

Stanhope firefighters worked with shovels and hoses to extinguish a large grass fire adjacent to a cottage on Little Boshkung Lake. The property owner, who had a permit to burn leaves, said he lost control of the fire when the wind blew up. Residents and cottagers are reminded that fire permits are required for all fires and that it has been an exceptionally dry spring, so care should be taken with all fires. (Photo by Carol Moffatt)

New tub room opened

Senior League

by Donna Wallace

Monday afternoon Pearl Cowen, Frieda Hulbig and Elva Deacon helped the residents fill their cards at bingo. In the evening the Salvation Army entertained with music and song.

Tuesday morning chapel service was taken by Barbara Trocewiez. A memorial was held in memory of the late Stuart Harrison. In the afternoon several residents were doing crafts.

In the evening Pearl Cowen and Corinne Arsenault dealt some cards for a few hands of euchre.

Wednesday and Thursday morning the residents limbered up with fitness, exercising with Doris and Janice.

Wednesday afternoon there was cards and crokinole under the watchful eye of Mabel Deacon and Pearl Cowen. The Grandfathers' Four entertained in the evening.

Thursday afternoon the ladies from West Guilford Gospel Church prepared the tea party. They brought two young lads who played the bag pipes. It was different and most enjoyable. Thank you fellows.

Friday morning many residents gathered in the tuck shop to fold serviettes. Don and Ellen Holden were back to tend bar at happy hour. They are settled in their new home in Minden, having moved from the country north of Minden. Frank Faulkner on saxophone, Mike Biagi on harmonica, Paul Cowen and Smokey on guitars, and Doris on piano, made up the entertainment. It was most enjoyable. Pearl, Janice and I assisted the residents.

Saturday afternoon John Menzies entertained on the piano.

Sunday afternoon Estella Burch read a chapter of her book. Rev. Burgess conducted the chapel service on Sunday evening.

We had several birthdays this week. Mae Mann, Lillian Martin and Bea Tustin all celebrated birthdays. Many happy returns of the day ladies.

Our sincere sympathy to the family of the late William Kennedy, who passed away at Hyland Crest on April 28.

We have two new residents - Gordon Cavanagh and Harold Orsborn. Welcome to Hyland Crest gentlemen. Hope you find it a pleasant stay.

Thanks to all who made this a great week, all our talented volunteers who gave us so much music and song, and our pastoral staff who gave words of comfort.

We have a welcome addition to Hyland Crest. It is a new bathtub. An old room was tastefully decorated and a modern electric tub was installed. I know the nurses will appreciate it. It can be raised up to a comfortable level for the nurses to work and then be lowered for easy access for the residents. The old tub room will be converted to a shower room. Everyone at the home wants to thank the Minden Legion for their donation which helped make the new tub possible.

The Silverts' clothing store will be at Hyland Crest May 31 from 10 am to 4 pm and is open to all.

Development vs. indigenous culture

Reflections
by David Suzuki

Choco is a province on the Pacific coast of Colombia. It is covered by one of he most biologically diverse tropical rainforests on Earth.

It is also the traditional home of perhaps 30,000 aboriginal people belonging to three main groups, Embera, Waunana, and Cuna, who continue to live as they have for thousands of years, depending on the forest for their food, medicines and materials.

From the airport at Bahia Solano, we take a bus up the coast to the village of El Valle, populated by descendants of African slaves brought in to mine gold over 400 years ago. There are more than 250,000 blacks in the Choco, agonizingly poor and anxious for development to bring a bit of wealth into their lives.

We rent a dugout with a motor and guide to take us up the Boro Boro river. After about three hours, we finally leave the plantations, cleared fields, sugar cane and breadfruit trees to enter primary rainforest.

As the river narrows we drag the dugouts across the shallow riffles and around fallen trees and logjams. At one point, we unload the boat and sink it to push it under a huge log blocking the river.

Night falls early and quickly in the tropics and as the light fades, we know we are still hours away from our destination, the Embera village of Boro Boro at the junction with the Mutata River.

Five hours after nightfall, we finally reach the settlement, exhausted and wet but exhilarated by the adventure. Hammocks and mosquito nets are slung in the tiny school and we soon join the frog calls with snores.

Boro Boro is home for 84 people living under thatched huts built on supports two metres above the ground. The tiny cluster of buildings is surrounded by small fields of domesticated plants.

Life here revolves around the river; for bathing, laundry, food and transportation. A three-hour hike up the Mutata ends at a spectacular falls that drops 400 metres into a huge pool that is considered the source of life and power in the river. The people of Boro Boro fear the power of the place and stay away. Only the shaman goes to the pool to perform rituals to ensure the fecundity of the river and forest.

The villagers tell us they want to keep their culture and their way of life. They have heard of proposals to develop the area, which one prime minister referred to as Colombia's "piggy bank".

The Pan American highway is nearly finished, stopped only when the minister of the newly formed Environment Ministry threatened to resign if it wasn't. There are other proposals to build super-ports on the coast, a network of highways to link the ports to cities and huge dams to deliver electricity to isolated villages. The familiar notion of "development" by extracting the resources of the forest is irresistible in Colombia too.

Colombia's forests, of which Choco is an important part, have the most number of known bird species (19.4 percent compared to 17.6 percent in Brazil and 15 percent in Africa) and orchids, second most amphibians, third most reptiles, and one of every five bats. This rich tapestry of living things is beyond any scientific comprehension and if destroyed, will never be duplicated or recreated.

There are people who have had the knowledge and expertise to make a living from these forests for millennia, but their futures are as uncertain as the fragile ecosystems that are their homes.

The 1987 United Nations report, Our Common Future, stated: "It is a terrible irony that as formal development reaches more deeply into rainforests, deserts and other isolated environments, it tends to destroy the only cultures that have proved able to thrive in these environments."

Indigenous people throughout Colombia are organizing to resist incursions on their land. In the Choco, a group called OREWA represents the Embera, Waunana and Cuna. But in the government discussions about the future of the Choco, the indigenous people who have always occupied the forests are seldom involved. The predicament is complicated by an Afro-Colombian population that outnumbers the aboriginal people by 10 to one.

After escaping slavery, they were able to survive in coastal villages for between 200 and 300 years. Lacking the indigenous culture and knowledge base built around the forest, the blacks have eked out a living and are desperate for the benefits of modern life.

In negotiations with the government, OREWA has included Afro-Colombians as stakeholders in the forest lands. But impoverished people are easy prey to the blandishments of developers.

Promises of jobs, electricity and television tempt them to welcome roads and ports. To them, the forest is a resource that can be converted to money. If we in Canada haven't been able to resist the siren's call of development, why should people who start out with far less?

There is an alternative to destruction of the forest by logging, mining and dams, as I'll tell you next week.

Around the County Town

by Jeanne Sears (call 286-1538)

Watched the V.E. Day celebrations on TV as much as possible and was very impressed by the love and admiration poured out by the Dutch people to the veterans attending the 50th anniversary of the Liberation of the Netherlands. So many of the veterans were made welcome in private homes and the parades were wonderful to watch. It was so special seeing the young people so attentive and caring and expressing their thanks for the Canadians who had helped them in the dark days of World War II. It certainly made me proud to be Canadian and the people of the Netherlands are to be commended for their caring and attention to the graves of those who were lost during the conflict. Fifty years is a long time but the Dutch people will never forget the young Canadians who came to their rescue.

IN MEMORIAM

ALTON, Hugh Sr. - To a special Dad and Grandpa who left us May 16, 1983.
Dad your memories are important
And still very clear,
When you were here with us,
We felt no fear.
We face life without you
Since that day, in May
But we'll be thinking of you
Until we meet again someday.
Loved and missed by daughter Laurie, son-in-law Bob, grandchildren Shane, Tonya, Tara and Shauna.

HUGHES, Roy - In loving memory of a beloved husband, father and grandfather, Roy Hughes, who passed away May 17, 1991.
We have not lost the one we love,
He is only gone before,
Where there is everlasting life,
And sorrow is no more.
There his soul will always be
And peace is everywhere,
We did not lose the one we love,
God has him in His care.
Forever loved and sadly missed by Reita and family.

COOPER, Alexandria Nicole Jane - In loving memory of my infant daughter Alex, taken from us May 21, 1994.
Day by day our thoughts do wander
To the grave not far away
Where they laid our dear daughter
Just one year ago today.
Neve forgotten, Love, Mom.

COOPER, Alexandria Nicole Jane - In loving memory of our dear granddaughter, Alex, lost to us May 21, 1994.
Take her in Thine arms, dear Lord,
And ever let her be,
A messenger of love
Between our hearts and Thee.
Always remembered, Grandpa & Grandma Cooper.
